

VOICE OF THE EAGLE

Chris H. Chambless
Clay County
Supervisor of Elections
2017 Spring Edition

What Down Time? It's a question I hear from time to time, "What do you do during off election years?" My typical answer goes "Oh, we're busy working towards the next election."

I understand how one can think that there is a down time, given the relief from the constant barrage of election or campaign information that comes post-election. However, today's complexities of elections gives way to little down time.

It's similar to the fact, that many don't realize the effort that takes place before Election Day, but instead are presented with the result; a skilled election worker, the empty booth, state of the art ballot tabulator, oh and the hearty smile with the "I Voted" sticker, all of which are associated with a "successful election." Not to mention maintaining an accurate voter registration database, coding the election, preparing the ballot, and let's not forget the training of nearly 400 dedicated election workers.

I've often wished that more people were aware of the thousands of man hours spent researching and preparing for the next election; inspecting, cleaning, repairing, and sometimes replacing equipment, all the while contacting community partners confirming and renewing leases for polling locations, updating and creating training plans, guides, and manuals with any changes as a result of new election code or rule, acquiring resources and provisioning precincts.

So next time you think of the elections office, now you know... There is no down time. In this issue...

ELECTION WORKER APPRECIATION DAY

The Clay County Board of County Commissioners recognized and celebrated the dedicated work of our Election Workers with a proclamation on January 10, 2017. We applauded the efforts and expressed immense gratitude to all past, present and future Clay County Election Workers.

OFFICE HIGHLIGHTS

Right: With his family by his side, Chris H. Chambless is sworn in as Clay County Supervisor of Elections by Judge Collins at the Old County Courthouse.

Left: The employees of the Elections Office are sworn in by Supervisor Chambless.

Happy Anniversary Holly DePaul

Can you believe it's been 10 years! Holly started in the Voter Services Bureau with answering calls, processing applications and classifying documents. Currently, she is the Election Services Manager and responsible for managing each precinct location/early voting site, all warehouse functions, ballot coding and tabulation. She believes this has been her most rewarding job and stated, "When I started working here, I had no idea what a massive undertaking it was to prepare, coordinate, and organize an election. Over the years, I have learned so much and continue to each day. The people I work with make a great team! One of our most basic fundamental rights is to vote and I am proud to do my very best to make sure our voters have every opportunity to do so." Assistant Supervisor Conte expresses that, "It has been exciting to watch Holly's personal growth over the years and see her value and the benefits our office has gained as a result. She has forged great relationships with our community and county partners, been very instrumental in the buildout and design of our warehouse and streamlined many departmental processes rendering great operational and monetary efficiencies." Holly enjoys watching her girls' soccer games and their weightlifting competitions. She piddles with a small garden and really LOVES to read.

VOLUNTEER RECOGNITION & APPRECIATION

In January, the Elections Office held a luncheon in recognition of dedicated volunteers during the 2016 Election Cycle.

CLAY DAY The first annual Clay Day, held in the State Capitol Courtyard, celebrated our contributions to Florida's economy, destination assets and quality of life. This successful event received great feedback:

"Clay County really knocked it out of the park."

"This event looks like you've been doing it for 10 years. I can't wait to see what you're going to do next year."

TIME for TEA

The ladies from the Election Office joined Supervisor Chambless' wife, Kellie and their two lovely daughters for a Saturday afternoon at Over the Second Cup Tea room. All the ladies agreed that we need to make this classy teambuilding an annual event.
